The objective of the HiRISE Team in collecting this image is to examine a spot with a high density of thin, regular layers. This site is located to the west of Maadim Vallis, one of the largest outflow channels on Mars.